

The sun may slip under the horizon, but that is the time when the sky erupts in light. This is not such a bizarre, unnatural notion on July Fourth, when dusk heralds the crackle and sparkle of celebratory fireworks. The grand finale of any festivity around the nation, the pyrotechnics shows are best marveled at with the advantage of some elevation. And what beats an upscale residence in the clouds where the fireworks erupt in red, white and blue.

To mark America's birthday this year, Haute Residence has curated a list of some of the most lavish properties to watch the fireworks from. Replete with rooftop decks and expansive balconies, these are the homes to thrust you in the center of the celebrations around the country.

Three Hundred Collins, PH02, Miami Beach

Another glistening residential development in Miami Beach is 300 Collins with its boutique 19 units. Designed with Danish flair by New York City's Designer for the one percent, Thomas Juul-Hansen, the resplendent homes come with expansive terraces and balconies for outdoor entertaining and dining and fireworks gazing. Penthouse PH02, listed for $5,300,000, has an added value – the most optimal view of South Beach.